

BROOKLYN NEWS.

FATALLY HURT ANOTHER BOY.

Detectives Put on Young Michael Lajohn's Track.

James La Buffa was kicked in the groin in a fight.

James La Buffa, aged thirteen, of 529 Carroll Street, Brooklyn, is lying at the point of death to-day suffering from injuries sustained when he was kicked in the groin by another boy.

On last Friday afternoon he quarreled with a boy named Michael Lajohn, of the same age, who lives at President Street and Fourth Avenue. Lajohn, it is alleged, knocked the other boy down, stepped upon him and finally kicked him in the groin. He then turned and fled.

La Buffa was carried home and put to bed, but his condition became so serious that Dr. Greenhalgh, of 755 Union Street, was called in. The physician did all he could to relieve the child's suffering, but when he called late last night he found that La Buffa was suffering from peritonitis, resulting from the kick in the groin.

He notified the police of the Sixth Avenue station, and Detectives Raleigh and Kelly are now looking for Lajohn.

DROVE ON THE SIDEWALK.

Street Was Too Crowded for Knox, Who Was Arrested.

John Knox, of 309 North Second Street, was held for examination in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, this morning on a charge of driving on the sidewalk.

About 9 o'clock last night Knox left his stable next door to his house in a light wagon, being accompanied by a friend. As the street was pretty well blocked at the time Knox drove along the sidewalk from Reubens Street to Driggs Avenue.

Policeman Hotchkiss was standing near the corner of Driggs Avenue, when he saw people rushing into the middle of the street, and the next moment the wagon appeared, Knox recklessly forcing the horse to the top of its speed.

Hotchkiss commanded him to stop, and when his orders were not obeyed grabbed the horse and forced a halt. Several little children had narrow escapes from being run over and the people in the neighborhood were so indignant at Knox that they threatened him with bodily harm.

THINGS M'KANE OVERLOOKED.

Sneak-Thieves Busy Gathering Them In at Coney Island.

On complaint of William Leahy, an engineer in the electric light station at Coney Island, Martin D. Van Buren was arrested this morning charged with stealing a gold watch which had been left in his vest pocket, hanging up in the engine room.

Some sneak thief visited a fair which is being held on the iron pier at Coney Island for the benefit of the Church of Our Guardian Angels and stole a gold watch valued at $5.

Silvia Hopkin, of Kensington Walk, Coney Island, notified the police this morning that she had been robbed of a gold watch and $15 in money.

GRAFT FOR PICKPOCKETS.

No Police at the Long Island City Depot and Ferry-House.

LONG ISLAND CITY, L. I., Aug. 3.—There is considerable complaint on account of the number of pickpockets who loiter around the Long Island Railroad station Sunday nights, picking the pockets of scores of people coming back from the beaches. The pickpockets know that there is no policeman stationed at the depot and ferry-house, and that they can do their work without interference.

Last Sunday night over a dozen pickpockets, emptied of their contents, and satchels were found in the gutters, which had been "lifted" from the pockets and belts of passengers.

Some time ago the Railroad and Ferry Company had a policeman stationed there, but the company refused to pay him any longer and he was discharged.

STOLE FROM A GRAVE.

Brode Charged with Desecrating the H. B. Claffin Lot.

Fritz Brode, thirty-eight years old, of 762 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, was held for examination by Justice Tighe, in the Butler Street Police Court, Brooklyn, this morning, on the charge of stealing flowers from the H. B. Claffin lot in Greenwood Cemetery on July 27.

Edward Sampson, of 321A Twenty-second Street, an employee in the cemetery, made the charge.

Sampson says he was walking along one of the paths, near the Claffin plot, when he saw Brode with two flowers in his hand. They were of a peculiar variety, and did not grow in any other part of the cemetery.

Supt. Cushman says the practice of stealing flowers from graves is becoming too general. Every one caught will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

STABBED BY A WOMAN.

Goldstein Says He Was Wounded by Becky's Scissors.

Becky Gelfink, tailors, who resides on Thattford Avenue, near Belmont, Brooklyn, was arraigned in Gates Avenue Court this morning on the charge of stabbing Heinz Goldstein, of Osborn Street and Eastern Parkway.

Both work in a tailor shop on Thattford Avenue, and an argument over the proper sphere of woman ended in harsh words. Finally Becky, it is said, stabbed Goldstein in the side with her scissors.

A warrant was secured for her arrest, but Court Officer Webb simply notified her to appear in court yesterday morning and did not take her into custody. Becky disregarded the mandate of the court, and Justice Quirkley issued a second warrant. Last night she was arrested, and this morning she gave bonds to appear for trial.

Cut His Throat with a Razor.

Thomas McLaughlin, of 150 North Seventh Street, Williamsburg, has been out of work for some time, and was dependent. At 11 o'clock last night he attempted to cut his throat with a razor, but the razor he used was slight. At the Eastern District Hospital this morning it was said that he will be out in a few days.

RACED FOR HIS LOVE.

Two Girls Row on Prospect Park Lake—Fred Boehm the Prize.

Mamie Butler Won and Mollie MacFadden Wept.

At First They Were Going to Settle Things by Means of a Duel.

The facts concerning an exciting boat race which took place last evening between two handsome young women on the lake in Prospect Park were learned to-day.

The prize for which the girls contended was, it is said, the privilege to claim Frederick Boehm, of 57 Clifton Place, as the victor's steady company.

The young women, whose names are Nellie MacFadden, of 23 Wilson Street, Williamsburg, and Mamie Butler, of this city, visited the lake shortly after 7 o'clock, accompanied by a well-dressed young man, who is believed to be the prize. They each jumped into a light skiff, the young man gave them the word, and off they started.

The race was from the boathouse to the end of the lake and back, a distance of about a mile. Both of the young women are experts with the oars, and on the home stretch raced side by side.

When within about seven yards of the boathouse Miss Butler sprang and won by half a boat length. When the two had disembarked, Miss MacFadden sat down on a bench and wept bitterly, while Miss Butler took the arm of the young man and walked away with him.

Miss MacFadden told her story to a number of sympathetic bystanders, and added that at first she and Miss Butler had decided to fight a duel, but finally thought that a boat race would be just as satisfactory.

An "Evening World" reporter called at the house 23 Wilson Street this forenoon, but Nellie was not visible. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. John MacFadden, with whom Nellie lives, said that the young woman had gone to her employment and could not be seen until evening.

Mrs. MacFadden admitted the facts about the boat race and added: "My husband will be very angry with Nellie, because she was a fool, and second, because she allowed herself to be beaten. John is an expert oarsman and he taught Nellie all she knew about rowing."

STRIKES ANOTHER SNAG.

Nassau Trolley Co. Blocked by the Rockaway Beach Road.

The Nassau Electric Railroad Company, of Brooklyn, ran against another snag this morning in its attempt to grindiron the city with trolley lines.

Although the trolley line this morning was started to receive a message from the Nassau Company, to show the Railroad, secured from Justice Bartlett, in the Supreme Court, an order returnable Aug. 8, requiring President P. H. Flynn, of the Nassau Company, to show cause why his company should not be enjoined from crossing the tracks of the Rockaway Beach road on Rockaway Avenue.

HORSES STRUCK DEAD.

Killed by Lightning and the Driver Knocked Senseless.

Trolley Car Traffic Interfered with by the Storm.

Several Houses Slightly Damaged by Electrical Bolts.

The blinding flash of lightning, followed by the deafening crash of thunder which startled Brooklynites this morning, was responsible for one of those queer freaks to which electrical discharges are particularly prone.

Genero Ciccia, an Italian, of 181 Grove Street, Brooklyn, an employee of Thomas H. McCormick, a contractor, of 25 Central Avenue, was loading a wagon with sand at Grove Street, near Irving Avenue. Attached to the wagon was a team of half-bred percherons hay horses valued at about $200.

Ciccia was hurrying to get away before the thunderstorm broke, when suddenly he saw a blinding flash and then he became unconscious.

When he awoke, fifteen minutes later, he found his horses lying dead in the gutter. He was bending over him with ammonia in one hand and brandy in the other. Ciccia turned instinctively to the brandy and soon after sat up and explained in picturesque ungrammatical English the circumstances in the day of judgment. He was sent home to recuperate.

The most peculiar feature of the accident was that both the horses lay dead in their harness, without a mark upon them to indicate the manner of their death. A crowd gathered about in numbers that it necessitated an extra force of police from the Cedar Street station to preserve order.

Pedro Suelza, forty years old, of 71 Main Street, Brooklyn, a carpenter, while at work on the new dry-dock at the Navy-Yard this morning, was struck by lightning and severely shocked. He was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

At 8.30 o'clock a three-story frame dwelling-house at 215 and 312 Nassau Avenue, Brooklyn, was struck. The roof caught fire and the firemen were called. The flames were quickly extinguished, and the damage will not exceed $100.

The structure is owned by John Croge. Although the thunderstorm this morning was of short duration the lightning caused some inconvenience to Brooklynites bound for the city. All the trolley cars on Fulton Street, De Kalb and Flatbush Avenues were compelled to run at half speed. For several minutes the travel was at a standstill, and full speed was not resumed on any of the lines until the storm had abated.

A bolt of lightning zig-zagged into the saloon of J. Oscar Kilne on Division Avenue, knocked the "hooker" sideways and shocked Henry Pelted, a bartender, who was sitting near the instrument.

Lightning struck the ground in front of the fashionable flat-house 623 Bedford Avenue, and one of the tenants, believing the place was on fire, turned in an alarm. There was no blaze.

When the storm broke, Sergt. Joseph Hayes had started to receive a message over the telephone in the Clymer Street station-house, and Operator Hugo Reynolds was listening to the report of a patrolman. Reynolds was badly shocked, and a ball of fire jumped out of the telephone just as the sergeant reached it. Neither the sergeant nor Reynolds went into the instruments for half an hour later.

HEBREWS APPEAL TO MAYOR.

Mr. Schieren Reprimands Sergt. White for a Remark.

A delegation of Sixteenth Ward citizens, headed by Banker Hyman Epstein, appeared before Mayor Schieren, of Brooklyn, this morning to press charges against Sergt. White, of the Stagg street station, for not affording them proper police protection.

Sgt. White, Sergt. White and two policemen appeared to deny the charges. Sergt. White denied that he had told two of Mr. Epstein's friends to move away from the ward if they were dissatisfied with the police of that precinct.

He said they had misunderstood his language, that he had simply advised them to move away if they could not bring up their children properly. The Mayor, however, reprimanded Sergt. White, and told him that in future he must never make such a statement to any one.

Before leaving Mr. Epstein told the Mayor that he would at once engage a lawyer and show specific cases where the police had neglected to protect the Hebrews' whippers.

Several of his neighbors, he said, had been stabbed by the toughs in the neighborhood, arrested and then fined $10.

Before Sergt. White and Capt. Eunke left, they said they had made between 400 and 500 arrests of toughs for pulling Hebrews' whippers.

When the case was called this morning, Schieren, either from fear of violence from the hands of the members of the Association or from some other cause, seemed to have forgotten everything that happened. This angered Justice Ingram, turning in his chair towards the policeman he said:

"See here, officer, I don't want this thing smothered at all. There are a lot of fellows in this city who think they can do what they like with the police. I want to teach the corner loafers and loungers that this Court will uphold the police in their duty, and that the loafers must let the police alone."

Policeman Schroeder reddened in the face and became much confused. He was dressing out that Justice Ingram gave him. Schieren then wanted the blame to be put on Frank Kelly, who occupied the time of the riot.

Pulson denied assaulting Schroeder, but Justice Ingram took little stock in his denial and fined him $15, or fifteen days' imprisonment.

SOME MYSTERY IN HER DEATH.

Corner Kane, of Brooklyn, was asked to-day to investigate the death of Bridget Curley, aged forty-five, of 160 Court Street, who was found dead in the yard in the rear of her home shortly before midnight.

At 11.30 o'clock she said she was going out upon the roof of an extension to hang up some clothes to dry. A few minutes later she screamed and her body was heard to strike the ground. When the other tenants reached the yard she was unconscious. An ambulance surgeon was summoned, but the woman died before he could reach her.

A Young Burglar Arrested.

August Schmidt, nineteen years old, was held in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day on a charge of burglary. About 2 o'clock this morning Schmidt broke into Henry Trump's grocery at 104 South Second Street. Policeman Fitzgibbon saw him enter and arrested him. Schmidt tried to stab the policeman with a screwdriver.

Her Jewelry Stolen.

Jewelry worth $200 was stolen this morning from the apartments of Lena Miller, of 33 Dincker Street, Brooklyn.

HE WILL PROTECT POLICE.

Police Justice Ingram Scores Long Island City Loafers.

Fines Schroeder's Prisoner in Spite of the Policeman's Reluctance.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Aug. 3.—Police Justice James Ingram has made up his mind to put a stop to the interference with the police of Long Island City by loafers and hangers-on about the corners. The police are continually being assaulted and harassed by toughs. This morning he created quite a sensation in the court-room by announcing that he did not intend to permit them to go unpunished any more.

This announcement was made when the case of Michael Fallon, a member of the Patsy Hannon Association, of "Tammany Hall" organization of Long Island City, was called. July 24 the Association gave a crowd at College Point. When the members returned to Long Island City that night a mob of men, named as the Patsy Hannon's saloon, over which the Association meets, and took a parting round of drinks.

The crowd became disorderly, and a fight ensued, resulting in a small-sized fellow, which he to be killed by the police. Policeman Schroeder was set upon by a gang and badly used. Fallon was arrested as the ringleader and the man who assaulted the policeman.

When the case was called this morning, Schroeder, either from fear of violence from the hands of the members of the Association or from some other cause, seemed to have forgotten everything that happened. This angered Justice Ingram, turning in his chair towards the policeman he said:

"See here, officer, I don't want this thing smothered at all. There are a lot of fellows in this city who think they can do what they like with the police. I want to teach the corner loafers and loungers that this Court will uphold the police in their duty, and that the loafers must let the police alone."

Policeman Schroeder reddened in the face and became much confused. He was dressing out that Justice Ingram gave him. Schieren then wanted the blame to be put on Frank Kelly, who occupied the time of the riot.

LIGHTNING HITS A BARN.

Valuable Horse Killed and a Number of Men Stunned.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 3.—During a severe electrical storm here to-day a big barn in the Evergreen Cemetery, on the outskirts of the city, was struck by lightning and destroyed with its contents. A valuable horse must have been instantly killed by the electric bolt, as he was found lying dead when men entered the burning barn to rescue him. The loss is over $3,000.

Three laborers, employed in constructing the trolley line of the Consolidated Traction Company between Newark and Elizabeth, and who were working just opposite the cemetery, were badly stunned and had to be carried into a neighboring house. Later they revived sufficiently to be removed to their homes.

Frank Williams, a lineman employed in the Central Telephone Exchange here, was stunned by a terrific shock which he sustained in the office. The fuses were all burned out in the Exchange and the women operators driven from their seats.

The fire alarm system was completely knocked out and havoc was created throughout the city by the telephone system. The lightning demolished a big weather-vane on a telegraph pole near the telephone station. The rain came down in sheets, the fall being 81-100 of an inch in twenty-five minutes.

NEW JERSEY NEWS.

'Twas Jacob Goldstein's.

Mystery of Rahway's Headless Body Cleared Up.

RAHWAY, N. J., Aug. 3.—The mystery concerning the headless body of a man found in the suburbs of this city last Saturday, has probably been solved.

Mrs. Jacob Goldstein, of Perth Amboy, yesterday visited the morgue of Undertaker Ryno, and from some of the clothing and articles found on the dead man, she concluded that the body was that of her husband.

Jacob Goldstein was a peddler, and lived with his family at Perth Amboy. One day in May last he visited New York and did not return. His wife, in his absence his horse had strayed away, and Goldstein started out to find him. Before going he put on an extra pair of trousers, as the air was chilly.

It was after midnight when he left his home, and nothing has ever been learned of him since. The horse returned of his own accord in a day or two.

A few days later the body of a man was found on the track at Perth Amboy. The coat and vest on this body were identified by Mrs. Goldstein as belonging to her husband. It is believed that Goldstein was robbed and murdered by some tramp, who concealed the body in the woods, and that the tramp was himself subsequently killed by a Pennsylvania train. The fact that the coat and vest found in the woods here had never been seen by Mrs. Goldstein, tends to confirm this theory.

The size of the body and the time it was found, in the woods correspond with Goldstein's body and the time he has been missing.

PAY FOR WATER AND GET MUD.

Property-Owners of Jersey City May Call a Mass-Meeting.

Health Officer Benjamin Says the Water Causes Disease.

Complaints still continue to come in about the bad water in Jersey City. Joseph Billington told Health Inspector Benjamin this morning that unless the city secured a pure water supply, he would not pay water rent. Mr. Billington is a large property owner. He said he was tired of paying for water and receiving mud, and that he is willing to subscribe $50 towards defraying the expenses of a mass-meeting of the citizens to take some steps towards securing a good water supply.

Health Officer Benjamin says that the water is so bad that it is, in his opinion, causing disease.

Mayor Wanser to-day said the city was not in a position at present to secure a new water supply.

PRAYING WHEN SHE DIED.

Pathetic Death of Aged Mrs. Geyer in Newark.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 3.—The story of the sudden death of Mrs. Margaret Geyer, of 35 Jones Street, this city, is a simple, pathetic one. Mrs. Geyer was seventy-five years old, a German, highly respected in the neighborhood for her goodness and piety.

Some children playing about her home yesterday peered in the nice old lady's window. Their childish minds were impressed and their consciences touched when they saw Mrs. Geyer kneeling before her bed, her old hands clasped before her and her head bowed low.

The children hurried away noiseless, so as not to disturb the old lady's prayer, but later their curiosity got the better of them and they again peered into the window.

There was Goody Geyer, still praying. "My! what a long prayer!" the little ones exclaimed. Their elders heard them, and they investigated. They could not attract Mrs. Geyer's attention, and a policeman was called. He forced the door open and, approaching the kneeling woman, found that she was dead.

The physician said she had been dead many hours. She had died the night before while offering up her evening prayer.

HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY.

Collector Collins Charged with Embezzlement.

Daniel P. Collins, of 318 Pavonia Avenue, Jersey City, was arrested this morning on complaint of Andrew A. Daly, who accused him of embezzling $100 from the Greenwich Insurance Company. It is alleged that Collins, who was a collector for the company, secured premiums for insurance, but failed to pay the money to his own use.

Collins was arraigned before Police Justice Potts, and was held in $500 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.
